DEFACED ARTWORK 'WILL BE REMOVED'

Controversial depiction of Turkish prime minister raises hackles

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A PIECE of Banksy-style street art which inflamed tensions in Haringey's Turkish community and has been vandalised twice is to be removed by the council.

The four-foot-high, spray-painted artwork – mistakenly thought to be the handiwork of urban graffiti artist Banksy by some residents who tweeted a picture of it on social media – was the subject of two attacks within days of its appearance on a wall next to Harringay railway station, in Green Lanes.

It showed embattled Turkish prime minister Tayip Erdogan making a getaway with an overflowing sack filled with cash and his son Bilal on his hands and knees behind him gathering up banknotes which have fallen out.

The subject matter is based on voice recordings circulated on the internet last year of Mr Erdogan allegedly ordering his son to dispose of vast amounts of cash – tapes which the Turkish leader says are fabricated.

Tensions have escalated between Turkey's Kurds and the government over the Kurdish community's prolonged struggle for self-determination and civil rights especially after a terrorist attack on a pro-Kurdish rally killed 128 people in the country's capital Ankara at the beginning of October.

The appearance of the painting a day after a protest march through Haringey by hundreds of Kurdish residents and supporters on Saturday, October 10, led to rising tensions on the borough's streets with yellow paint being daubed over the faces of Mr Erdogan and his son.

Kurdish residents cleaned the paint off, but the next day it was defaced again when a pot of white paint was thrown over it.

"There was some speculation it was a genuine Banksy and people wanted to protect it," said a spokesman for the Kurdish Community Centre, in Portland Gardens, Harringay.

A Haringey Council spokeswoman said that the council had received a number of complaints about the "unauthorised artwork", which she pointed out was on Network Rail property.

"It has been vandalised twice and the council has arranged to have it removed," she added.

Project offers hope to young entrepreneurs

A PROJECT providing a springboard for 16 to 24 year-olds to find a job or start their own business was launched with a fanfare in Haringey last week.

Celebrations were held to mark the official opening of somewhereto_Tottenham, which is based on the ground floor of a listed building which was badly damaged in the 2011 riots and has been restored with regeneration cash.

Users of the project at the 639 Enterprise Centre, in Tottenham High Road, gathered with councillors, dignitaries, business leaders, and artists to toast its future success.

Run by the charity London Youth Support Trust and Haringey Council, the initiative is aimed at helping young people to gain job skills.

Man remanded over hit-and-run

A 21-YEAR-OLD man was remanded in custody when he appeared in court charged over an alleged hit-and-run in which an eight-year-old boy and a 50-year-old woman were hurt in Park Lane, Tottenham, on Wednesday, October 7.

Both were taken to hospital, but their injuries were not life-threatening.

Fabio Tavares, of no fixed address, appeared at Highbury Magistrates' Court on Saturday accused of causing serious injury by dangerous driving and having no insurance and was committed for trial to Wood Green Crown Court, where he is due to appear on Friday, October 30.

Court serves up seven-year sentence for takeaway robber

A TEENAGER from Tottenham who used a replica gun to hold up two takeaway restaurants in the space of five minutes has been jailed for seven years.

Mario Madeo, 19, of Willoughby Lane, and an unknown accomplice carried out the robberies on fast-food outlets in Barnet and Brent. Madeo threatened staff with the imitation firearm after the duo robbed a takeaway in Willesden High Street, on Monday, May 25.

Five minutes later police firearms officers searching the area spotted two men matching their description going into a takeaway in Cricklewood Broadway, where they were seen to commit another robbery.

As Madeo tried to escape, he was detained by police. He was found to be in possession of a replica gun and stolen cash.

His accomplice evaded capture by fleeing out of a fire exit door at the back of the premises.

Madeo was sentenced last week at Harrow Crown Court, having pleaded guilty at a hearing in September to two counts of robbery and two counts of possessing an imitation firearm.

Detective Constable Adrian Whitewick, from the Flying Squad, said: "This was a planned and organised set of armed robberies.

"This sentence shows that the Met will act quickly to detain and bring to justice anyone who seeks to carry out such brazen attacks.

"I am pleased that an imitation firearm is now off the streets and efforts are continuing to bring Madeo's accomplice to justice."

Jailed: Mario Madeo

Flooded road forced to close

Traffic at standstill after underground pipe bursts

High tide: Green Lanes was flooded last Thursday, above and right

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

A SWATHE of Green Lanes between Palmers Green and Winchmore Hill was closed off on Thursday morning after an underground water pipe burst, sending water surging above ground.

Rush-hour traffic ground to a standstill as water swept from Eaton Park Road to Hoppers Road.

As engineers battled to contain the leaking water, buses were diverted from the flooded road and motorists were also forced to avoid the area altogether.

In a series of tweets to concerned residents, Thames Water said they were working on the problem.

By Friday, temporary traffic lights were in place, allowing traffic to flow along Green Lanes.

Thames Water confirmed that two commercial properties in Green Lanes were affected, with water seeping into one from the outside and the other being affected by internal flooding due to the burst 16-inch water pipe.

Although no homes were left without water, Thames Water advised residents to expect low water pressure as they worked to fix the leak.

A Thames Water spokeswoman told the Advertiser that the pipe had been repaired and resurfacing work would be taking place on the road throughout today.

Drug smuggler is handed 14-year jail sentence

AN Enfield man was part of an international drug smuggling ring which imported heroin with a street value of £20million into the UK.

Bilal Bildik, 61, of Severn Drive, was one of 10 men and one woman jailed for a total 114 years after a major operation by the Metropolitan Police's Central Task Force to arrest and charge the drugs traffickers in September 2014.

Karaman Saglam, 44, from Cheshunt, was the last member of the gang to be sentenced at the Old Bailey on Friday, at which point it emerged that Bildik had been jailed for 14 years at Woolwich Crown Court in May, having pleaded guilty to conspiracy to supply heroin.

At Bildik's trial, it was revealed that he had played a pivotal role in the importation of the drugs, travelling to Rotterdam, Cyprus and Turkey and taking receipt of two large quantities of heroin in the days before the arrests.

Detectives had evidence to show he was also being contacted from a prison cell by another member of the gang, who was orchestrating the supply of heroin using a contraband mobile phone while serving an eight-year jail sentence for possession with intent to supply.

Police also recovered 18 grams of heroin from the from an address in Huxley Road, Edmonton, the former home of Cosmina Smetanca, 20.

Smetanca, of Beaconsfield Road, Tottenham, was jailed for eight years at Woolwich Crown Court in April after being found guilty of conspiracy to supply.

Gloomy forecast over changes to museum service

PROPOSED cuts to the archives and museum service will undermine Enfield's culture, an expert has claimed.

Responding to a consultation, which closed on Sunday, Arts Council-funded regional museums development manager Ben Travers said: "The further cuts envisaged would cause disproportionate harm to the council's cultural offer, relative to the costs involved in continuing the service."

Enfield Council is proposing to scan resources from the local studies centre and make them available online as well as change access to the archives in the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield Town, to appointment only and is also looking at reducing the museum space by closing the temporary exhibition area on the ground floor.

Mr Travers said that plans to concentrate on the "marooned" permanent display upstairs would lead to far fewer visitors and predicted that the service would "quickly stagnate".

He said the World War I exhibition and current Weddings display, which are on course to bring in 40,000 visitors over two years, "underlines the 'shop window' value of having such an excellent museum in the ground-floor space, ensuring solid business for the cafe and bringing in potential custom" for the theatre, art gallery and conference rooms.

He said that the proposed loss of the ground-floor exhibition space would lead to "a significant impoverishment of the cultural offer provided" and to the demise of "a vibrant and much-loved service".

Last year's visitor numbers of 24,781, an increase from 15,784 in 2011-12, the museum's first year in the Dugdale, were "very respectable", Mr Travers added.

He highlighted work by staff for Black History Month, Holocaust Memorial Day and the council's 50th anniversary celebrations. "The lack of any budget for the one remaining staff member would make it impossible to stage any activities or programmes," he said.

A council spokesman said: "We welcome the wide range of views expressed regarding the future of the library and museum service and we are pleased so many people have shown an interest in sharing their views with us. As with all consultations, no decisions have yet been taken and we will take into account all the comments people have made before reaching a decision."

Susana scoops beauty title

A TRAINEE beauty therapist hopes winning a beauty contest will help her ensure children have the chance to read and write in her home country of Equatorial Guinea.

Susana Owono won the Miss Black Africa 2015 accolade after beating 17 other hopefuls to the title.

The beauty therapy student and model, from Brecon Road, Ponders End, was crowned at the grand finale in Newham Town Hall, in east London.

More than 2,100 women took part in auditions for the contest and the finals were held in East Ham on October 10.

Twenty-four-year-old Susana said: "I am so honoured and proud to be selected."

The shortlisted contestants spent three months training for the final.

Susana said: "We worked really hard. They taught us how to walk properly, how to sit down and how to speak. The final was the first time I had performed in front of a crowd,"

She has modelling experience doing commercial work to promote make-up and hopes the competition will help to boost her career.

She took time out from her beauty course at Tottenham College to prepare for the contest.

She grew up in Equatorial Guinea, in central Africa, before moving to Spain and eventually coming to live in London.

She is hoping the award will help her boost children's education and wants to start a charity programme in Equatorial Guinea.

"I intend to help kids who can't read or write and work with the government to donate books for education," she added. "It's a fundamental right that kids know how to read and write."

The award was founded in 2011 for African women living in the UK to showcase their culture, talent and creativity. Previous winners have come from Zimbabwe, Angola and Nigeria. Winners become ambassadors for Miss Black Africa and are supported in running its charitable programme.

Support group is treated to tricks at 25th birthday bash

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

FORMER cardiac patients who attend a support group liked their 25th birthday celebrations quite a lot as they were entertained by Paul Daniels.

The magician was joined by his assistant and wife Debbie McGee at a lunch at Bush Hill Park Golf Club to mark Heart Throbs' silver jubilee.

He entertained 70 guests with his tricks and involved a few volunteers from the audience.

Heart Throbs was founded in 1990 by cardiac nurse Sister Noirin Egan, who cared for patients in Melbourne ward at Chase Farm Hospital, in The Ridgeway, Enfield.

The club's honorary secretary Joan Firth said: "In 1990 people who had a heart attack or heart problem were recommended to get bed rest. You would probably be in bed for a quite a few weeks.

"Noirin persuaded the doctors to try patient exercise, which was monitored very closely. They found that they actually got better quite quickly."

The success of the early sessions led to the start of a programme for heart patients in Enfield and a group got together to continue after their rehabilitation programme ended and to help them with the discipline of keeping up an exercise.

Mrs Firth said: "It was unheard of at the time. It was pretty new and it has gone from strength to strength."

Patients are referred to the group by doctors to continue exercising with people who understand their concerns after they have completed their cardiac rehabilitation.

"It doesn't matter if you have had a stent or a heart by-pass," said Mrs Firth.

"It's just persuading people that they can do it and they get used to the fact that they won't fall apart after surgery."

Members also attend monthly cardiac support meetings where they have a chance to hear from a speaker, usually on health-related topics.

Speakers this year have included cardiologists as well as a talk on comedians from Geoff Bowden, of the British Music Hall Society.

The group holds six hourly exercise sessions at Holtwhites Sports and Social Club, in Holtwhites Hill, Enfield, and one class at St Stephen's Church Hall, in Park Avenue, Bush Hill Park.

Pond life: Alex inspects the newt he caught during the morning's pond-dipping session

Woodcroft folk see what lies beneath

By Julia Gregory
julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

CHILDREN left the classroom behind and learned about the wildlife on their doorstep during lessons at a nature reserve in Winchmore Hill.

The 30 Year 6 pupils from West Grove Primary School explored Woodcroft Wildspace during an open-air class.

Volunteers from the nature reserve on a former sports ground off Woodcroft lead free classes for Enfield schools at the Wildspace classroom.

The children had a go at pond dipping to find out what lives beneath the water's surface at the reserve. Armed with fishing nets and jam jars of sticks, they discovered a range of wildlife, including water boatmen, whirligig beetles and great diving beetles, along with newts and dragonfly larvae.

Volunteer Bob Ladell was on hand to help the children from the school, in Chase Road, Southgate, identify the wildlife.

He said: "One of the children said, 'I just want to spend all day here'. The visit was a real eye-opener for them. Their eyes were the size of dinner plates."

‘Leave Sunday trading laws alone’, says MP

Burrowes vows to fight plans to relax legislation

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.s

AN MP is leading a movement to battle government plans to relax Sunday trading hours.

David Burrowes, the Conservative MP for Enfield Southgate, revealed to the Advertiser that he is currently in the process of trying to dissuade the government from giving shops more freedom on how long they open for on Sundays.

Under current laws, larger shops of more than 280 square metres can only open on Sundays for six consecutive hours between 10am and 6pm.

However, in George Osborne’s July budget, the Chancellor announced that the government would look at relaxing those laws – and the details will be debated in parliament today as a law giving councils the power to allow big retailers to open for longer is included as an amendment to the Cities Bill, which has already completed its passage through the House of Lords.

Mr Burrowes says he will be leading a backbench rebellion against the government and hopes to defeat any debate on the issue by bringing together cross-party opposition to the bill from about 20 Conservative MPs as well as Labour figures who fear longer working hours could affect workers’ rights.

Mr Burrowes, a Christian and father of six, said that his opposition to the plans was two-fold.

He said: “At the moment we have a happy British compromise. If you want to shop, you can, but it does not put additional pressure on retail workers who would feel obliged to work if their employer was open for longer.”

He added that local high streets could be put under pressure if big retailers were given the freedom to open longer.

“At the minute it is a boost to the small shops that they can trade for longer on a Sunday, giving them the edge over the out-of-town retailers. This is about supporting my local high street and about supporting local retail workers.”

However, Erdal Mehmet, who owns G Mantella jewellers, an independent business in Church Street, Enfield Town, has a different reason for his opposition to the relaxation in the laws.

He made the choice not to open on Sundays because he believes that is “family time.”

“I only open on Sundays in December because if we didn’t then we would lose out on business,” he said.

“In my opinion there are enough hours in the six other days of the week to do everything. With the internet, people can shop 24 hours a day if they want to, so extending Sunday hours is not really a help to high streets.

“I think if the law was relaxed there would be more pressure to open on Sundays, but I certainly would not succumb to it.”

Worried: Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe

Cuts will pose a threat to safety, warns police chief

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

THE capital's most senior police officer told a meeting of Enfield residents that he fears for the "safety of London" as huge cuts to the force loom on the horizon.

Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe was speaking at a meeting in Aylward Academy, in Windmill Road, Edmonton, last Wednesday after revealing earlier in the day that the Met could be facing cuts to the London policing budget of about £800million over the next four years.

His comments marked the first time the Met chief had publicly voiced concern about the impact of the cuts after four years of enforced efficiency savings which have seen a freeze on recruitment, hundreds of redundancies and the sell-off of police stations across the capital.

The cuts, which could see the Met lose between 5,000 and 8,000 front-line officers, are looming partly as a result of a new formula the government is planning to use to allocate resources across the country.

Question time: Residents had a chance to quiz Sir Bernard

The commissioner summed up the crime statistics over the past 12 months by admitting there had been an increase in shootings in the borough of Enfield and more "woundings involving knives".

Responding to a question from Yasemin Brett, Enfield Council's cabinet member for community safety, about how, in the face of cutbacks the Met could keep the area secure, Sir Bernard said that if the anticipated cuts became a reality, people would see a difference in how many officers were on patrol on the street.

"There are no easy answers," he said. "This city is getting bigger and the challenges will only increase. I am worried about the safety of London.

"I have been asked if I am just panicking people and to that I would say that in the past four years we have seen our grant allocation reduced by 15 per cent and we didn't complain.

"We kept police numbers high, but the scale of these cuts means I don't think I can guarantee to keep those high numbers of police officers any more," he added.

Jubilee ward councillor Bernadette Lappage asked Sir Bernard what would be at risk if the proposed cuts went ahead.

He replied: "There are some things that we are not going to do as well. For example, last year the Met carried out 24,000 welfare checks of vulnerable people – people who have left hospital and the hospital is concerned about them, so they call us. We do it because no one else will, but it's not our job.

"Each year we receive 36,000 missing from home reports of young people – two thirds of those young people are in care and we get called when they walk out of care.

"Another thing that we do, that is not strictly the police's job, is monitoring people on the sex offenders' register. There are 7,000 people on the register."

Asked if in future the Met would be able to invest resources in catching criminals as much as they currently do – with extensive use of CCTV, use of the police helicopter in chasing suspects and the immediate deployment of back-up and patrol cars to the scene of a suspected crime – Sir Bernard replied: "Well, we will have a third less resources, that's the reality of what we're looking at."

Last orders?: The Green Dragon pub, on the corner of Vicars Moor Lane and Green Lanes, in Winchmore Hill

Hopes fade as pub developers put in bid to build homes

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS battling to retain a historic pub in the heart of Winchmore Hill fear that they are witnessing the beginning of the end of the landmark building as they know it.

Mike McClean and his wife Sharon have been in the vanguard of the battle to preserve the Green Dragon, on the corner of Vicars Moor Lane and Green Lanes, since the building was sold to developers earlier this year.

After two failed bids to secure asset of community value status for the pub, that has existed on or near its current site since 1726, the campaigners were devastated when they saw that the developers, Green Lanes Investments, had submitted a planning application.

The plans reveal that Green Lanes Investments is hoping to build seven three-bed, three-storey townhouses on the site. All seven homes would have sun terraces to the front and back as well as off-street parking.

The plans also show that the developers also want to convert the pub into a shop with a two-storey rear extension for flats, storage and staff facilities.

Although the application has yet to be determined, Mike fears that the boardings erected around the car park at the side of the pub could be the first sign the developers are intent with ploughing ahead with their plans.

"The developers have submitted their planning application and now they seem to be positioning themselves to start building immediately," he said.

"But we have not given up hope because so many people have put in their objections to the planning application.

"People have a lot of grounds to object. If this major development went ahead, combined with the Cycle Enfield scheme, it would be total chaos in Green Lanes."

Mike said that even though the applications for ACV status were rejected, that does not necessarily mean that the fight is lost.

"We haven't given up," he added. "There was a case of a pub in Cambridge called the Golden Lion where even after their ACV status was rejected an enlightened planning officer saw that the developer was cynically exploiting a change of use precedent to make profits from developing housing on the site."

A decision on whether the Green Lanes Investmentsplanning application will be given the go-ahead is provisionally set for November 6.

Patients' questionnaire

IN last week's Advertiser (October 14), we reported on a survey measuring the levels of patient satisfaction with doctors' surgeries in the borough. In the article "Surgeries pass patient test with flying colours", it was stated that a quarter of patients at the Forest Road Group practice, in Hertford Road, Edmonton, "would not recommend it". In fact, it should have referred to a quarter of patients at the practice who responded to the survey – two out of eight people – and not a quarter of the surgery's 12,200 registered patients.

THE arts and culture sector is gearing up for Christmas – and what a fantastic array of activity there is going on in Enfield, with more than 300 events taking place.

The sets and costumes are being created at Millfield Theatre, the Dugdale Centre, Chickenshed and the Intimate Theatre as they prepare for their biggest shows of the year.

Enfield's rich heritage will also take centre stage as orchestras and choirs prepare for their big Christmas concerts in churches across the borough and Forty Hall presents a magical Christmas, with candlelight tours, craft market, a stained glass exhibition, concerts and the first Food Festival at Forty Hall Farm.

I'm particularly looking forward to Sunday, November 29, when the community, led by the inimitable Kathy Worrall, will take to the streets of Enfield for the annual Christmas Parade of Lights, setting off from Enfield Civic Centre at 4pm and ending in Enfield Town with the switching-on of the Christmas tree lights by the mayor and lots of singing of Christmas carols at 6pm.

In addition, for the first time, the rejuvenated Enfield Market will present a Christmas market, called the Frost Fair.

Choirs will be singing and bands will be playing, bringing lots of cheer to all. Santa will be at Pearsons and also with the Edmonton Rotary Club as he makes his Christmas collections.

The only place to be at Christmas is Enfield.

This draconian reduction will hit low paid workers

AT our weekly surgeries, we are getting an increasing number of residents coming to us concerned about the changes to tax credits due in April next year.

From April 2016, the threshold of tax credits will be cut from £6,420 to £3,850. Also the rate of reduction on tax credits will be increased from 41p for every pound above the threshold and residents now lose 48p for every pound above the new threshold. This draconian reduction affects many lowly paid public service employees including teaching assistants, for example.

A family with two children working 35 hours a week on the minimum wage is set to lose £1,615 a year.

A family with one child with one earner under the age of 25 on the national minimum wage (£7.20 per hour) working 35 hours a week is set to lose £1,460. Why doesn't the government chase the non-taxpayers and tax avoiders in this country rather than hit the lowest paid?

With Enfield having 25,000 jobs under the living wage (government figures), I can only hope that the government changes its mind before the April reductions start.

Consultation is closing the museum by stealth

I AM writing concerning the Local Studies and Museum consultation as featured on October 7 ("Digital move prompts fears of museum cutbacks").

The consultation is misleading in the extreme and essentially closing the museum by stealth. The questions within, and the text accompanying, the consultation document are loaded and give a strong impression that the decision to close has been made.

I spoke to a number of people at the busy Enfield Market and not one individual was aware of these proposals. Was this exercise advertised any more than a tiny notice in the back page of the paper so that everyone has a chance to have a say?

It is recognised that local authorities must make substantial savings and digitisation has many positive uses when used in tandem with old technology, "books" and "people".

However, the costs of providing the existing service pales into insignificance when it is compared with the costs of full digitisation and loss of true access to these resources.

Both proposals are short-sighted and the museum could well lose its accreditation and be prevented from being able to acquire sources of funding from outside the council.

The "downstairs" museum area has, I understand, been attracting 20,000 visitors a year and the audience has kept growing. It has provided schools, community groups and individuals across all ages with an irreplaceable resource.

In these times we need to think about bringing people together to share heritage and culture. This is currently being demonstrated with the marriage exhibition at the museum, with exhibits from across a wide spectrum of the communities living in Enfield.

A quick glance at the comments book will show you how much these exhibitions have helped install a sense of belonging and pride at living in the borough. They are not moving the museum, just closing it so that all that remains is an upstairs corridor, one that is used as a signing-in area for conferences at the Dugdale or as a study area for students, and exhibitions will disappear.

The Enfield Strategic Partnership further quotes its aims "to fully engage with the diverse local community, including traditionally excluded groups, ensuring that the partnership continues to reflect their needs and improve the opportunities for these groups to participate fully at all levels of the partnership".

The WWI exhibition was a perfect example of where people had the opportunity to exchange stories and experiences with the wider community. This intended change will exclude numerous groups and individuals.

It is not solely the proposed staff cuts that will cause hardship. It's denying access to a wealth of experience provided by the staff of the museum and local studies as their knowledge, enthusiasm and assistance can't be digitised.

Where will the existing museum objects that can't fit into the corridor area be displayed and at what cost, and will Enfield's past be lost to existing and future generations?

A museum is not a corridor. More importantly, a museum is not just "stuff in cabinets" – it is its staff, its knowledge, its interaction with the public and what the exhibitions and material gives to audiences young and old.

The proposals are unsustainable in their current form. A proper, well-thought-out discussion with forums, groups and users may identify some savings that can be achieved, but this needs to be done honestly and openly rather than quietly pushed through.

The case for a new school has not been made

DAVID Flint wrote admirably ("Time to stand up for green belt commitment", Advertiser, October 14) – but advocates building a new secondary school on the Trent Park campus.

This should not happen, in part because the case for a new school site in the area is not made.

True, the Church of England has applied for a new free school in an enabling partnership with Fairview Homes for 300-plus dwellings, but Enfield Council has not come out with plans for further school capacity in the west of the borough.

The free school application was submitted by the London Diocesan Board for Schools without even enough support from its own faith.

The council would have to conjure up some extraordinary reasons to waive green belt protection to allow housing on these fields.

But alas, I hear us all sigh, it's a school...we must build it somewhere?

So why not build smaller schools on a different site?

Where is the consideration in supporting existing schools with the current capacity to take on additional pupils, or schools which have desires to expand to meet any local demand?

Enfield Road fields are valued by the whole community, over and above the ambitions of the church and Fairview, the property company.

Has Fairview ever gifted a piece of land to the church and community before?

Residents and all stakeholders are resolved not to see specious arguments deployed to breach green belt regulations. A petition to the council is attracting strong support.

Ribbon development, linking Oakwood and Enfield, forms no part of the local plan, so will be forcefully resisted as destructive of the character of western Enfield.

Other than the church and Fairview, are there any votes for this?

DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:
- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
- Are they loose?
- Do not cut food as well as they used to?
- Do they make your face look older?
- Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning or
- Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

Residents call for new road so they can live in peace

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

On the road to hell: Peter Bostock, Balvinder Singh, Rosemary Mehmet, Norman Bennett and Hazel Drewett, from the Bullsmoor Lane action group

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

LORRIES thundering past schools, the air thick with diesel and petrol fumes, and drivers stuck in never-ending traffic jams have made a through road practically uninhabitable for residents, a new campaign group has said.

Bullsmoor Lane has always been used by the heavy traffic that flows along it from the A10 to industrial estates of Mollison Avenue, in eastern Enfield. Now a band of residents has launched a campaign that claims there has been a surge in levels of pollution from lorries using the road in recent years.

The campaigners are demanding urgent action to transform the road so that residents can live in peace once more.

Rosemary Mehmet, 56, of Bullsmoor Ride, off Bullsmoor Lane, Enfield, is petitioning the powers-that-be to build a new road that would connect Mollison Avenue directly with the M25.

Such an access road would mean that the lorries that thunder down the A10 before turning on to Bullsmoor Lane and then Mollison Avenue would be taken away from residential areas.

"We have traffic along Bullsmoor Lane 24 hours a day, 365 days of the year," said Mrs Mehmet. "It is so dangerous for residents of Bullsmoor because of the speed of cars.

"The residents of this area suffer from a litany of health problems. Study after study has shown that cancers, diabetes, epilepsy, high blood pressure and even dementia are all linked to high levels of pollution and this area is one of the most polluted in London because of the hundreds of lorries that thunder along this road every single day."

The grandmother-of-two added that when the secretary of state for transport Patrick McLoughlin visited the area in May, ahead of the general election, he promised that if he was re-elected looking at building the road would be at the top of his agenda.

However, when Mrs Mehmet pressed him after the election to come good on his promise, she said that his response was that the government did not deal with road building.

"But they do, I have looked at the government's remit and it includes motorways and motorway slip roads," said Mrs Mehmet.

She has also lobbied Enfield Council on the issue and a spokesman said: "We are always looking at ways of improving traffic flow in the borough and will look at any serious proposal to do so. A traffic modelling exercise is currently being undertaken to determine the traffic flow needs in this area both as they are at present and potential future demand."

The Department of Transport was unable to comment on Mrs Mehmet's concerns before the Advertiser went to press.

When David met Quixote

By Julia Gregory
julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

A BRAVE plumber who grabbed a dog which was attacking a police horse has been honoured with a top award.

David Wilson, from Edmonton, was working in Greenwich Park, in south London, when he spotted the horse being savaged by a dog which was biting at his chest.

His intervention has won him the Royal Horse Society's Sefton Award, named after the much-loved horse which survived an IRA bomb in 1982.

The horse, called Quixote, was undergoing training and police horse trainer Alistair Blamire said: "David came running across from at least 100 yards away and grabbed the dog."

The quick-thinking 26-year-old held the French bull terrier cross to his chest to prevent it continuing the attack and the dog's owner re-attached its lead.

Quixote suffered puncture wounds in the incident on January 22 last year. The horse has since made a full recovery and is on duty in Whitehall.

Mr Wilson, who works for the Royal Parks, was uninjured in the incident.

He was reunited with Quixote at the Household Cavalry Barracks, in Knightsbridge, central London, where Sefton was based, for an award ceremony. He was presented with a trophy and certificate honouring his bravery.

He said: "It is fantastic to see him out on the beat and doing so well."

The award commemorates Sefton, who underwent eight hours of surgery after he sustained 34 life-threatening wounds in an IRA attack in Hyde Park in 1982.

A nail bomb placed in a car was detonated as soldiers passed by for the Changing of the Guard ceremony, killing four men and seven horses, and injuring seven other horses.

A second bomb exploded two hours later and killed seven bandsmen of the Royal Green Jackets in Regent's Park.

Car enthusiasts: don't miss out on a classic opportunity

CLASSIC car enthusiasts will make a beeline for Alexandra Palace when it hosts Classic & Sports Car – The London Show at the end of this month – and we have two pairs of tickets to give away.

The event brings you the world's most glamorous classic cars. Highly regarded classic car collectors and dealers will converge on the venue from October 30 to November 1 with some of their most prized models.

Visitors will also get a chance to peruse the cars on display and meet and greet some of the greatest names in the automotive industry.

The show's highlights will include the oldest surviving Aston Martin still in existence, the A3, and a hunt for the best British car ever, with models as diverse as the McLaren F1 and Austin Seven in contention.

Meanwhile, the event's Live Stage will host famous names including Ant Anstead, presenter of For The Love Of Cars on Channel 4, and former Formula One team principal Ross Brawn.

The show is run by Classic & Sports Car, one of the world's biggest and best classic car magazines – and Haymarket Exhibitions, organiser of the globally renowned Autosport International show.

To be in with a chance of winning a pair of tickets to the show on Sunday, November 1, just answer this question:

❑ Where is Classic & Sports Car – The London Show being held? a) Alexandra Palace; b) Wembley Stadium; c) The 02 Arena.

Send your answer, with your name, address and a daytime telephone number, to: Classic Car Competition, North London & Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT, or send your answer, with contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk, with "Classic Car" in the subject line, by noon on Wednesday, October 28.

DREAM OF OWNING YOUR OWN HOME? RIGHT TO BUY COULD OPEN THE DOOR FOR YOU

Right to Buy is the scheme that helps eligible council and housing association tenants to buy their home at a discount on the market value.

Since discounts were increased in 2012, over 35,000 people in England have become homeowners through the Right to Buy scheme.

Could this be the right time for you – or somebody you know – to join them?

You can get a maximum of 70% off the price of your home – up to a cash value of £77,900, or £103,900 in London. Each year this discount increases by the rate of inflation.

Recent changes in eligibility mean you now only need to be a secure council tenant for three years instead of five before you can apply to buy your home. So now could be the ideal time to take that next step.

Buying your home is a life-changing decision and a commitment you shouldn't make without seeking expert impartial advice. First you need to find out whether you're eligible and if you can afford it.

Who qualifies for the Right to Buy?

If you're a tenant and can answer 'yes' to the following questions, then you are likely to be eligible to buy your current home through Right to Buy:

- Are you currently a council tenant, or were you living in your home when the council transferred it to another landlord (usually a housing association)?
- Have you been a council or housing association tenant for 3 years or more?
- Can you confirm that you do not live in sheltered housing or other housing designed for elderly or disabled people?

Tenants also need to be free from legal problems with debt or outstanding possession orders, and your home mustn't be due to be demolished.

The government has plans to extend Right to Buy. If you're a housing association tenant and currently not eligible for Right to Buy you can sign up to receive updates on the scheme by visiting our Right to Buy website.

You can also look at other government schemes that might help you on www.ownyourhome.gov.uk.

What to do next

If you want to find out more about buying your home and whether you're eligible for a discount through Right to Buy, have a look at our website. There is a simple quiz to check if you might be eligible, an easy-to-use calculator to help you work out if you can afford to buy and lots of practical tips about the buying process.

If you decide to go ahead you will need to fill in the application form and take the process forward with your landlord.

Support from start to finish

There is plenty of guidance available to help you decide if it's the right choice for you. You're not on your own.

With the Government's official Right to Buy adviser service, you can get free and impartial advice as well as the help and support you need throughout the process of buying your home from filling in the application form to completing your purchase – if you decide it's the right choice for you. The advisers can provide information on finding a mortgage, appointing a solicitor and arranging a survey.

If you are midway through buying and have a problem, get in touch with the adviser service and they can help you.

The advisers are available from Monday to Friday, 8am until 6pm. You can phone, email or chat online.

School places plan set for thumbs-up

Choice: Gonul Daniels

By Julia Gregory

julia.gregory@nlhnews.co.uk

PLANS to create 630 extra school places across Enfield by 2019 are set to be approved.

Enfield Council's cabinet is due to discuss proposals to create an additional 330 primary school places and a further 300 for secondary school pupils at a meeting tonight.

Councillors will be asked to approve the strategy for providing extra classes and to keep a £62.8million budget allocation, including £43.3m of government grants, to cover the programme.

Since 2010 the council has created 4,410 extra primary school places already to meet demand.

A council report prepared for the cabinet said that the demand for primary school places between 2015 and 2018 was likely to be higher than previous projections and the demand for secondary schools was likely to peak in 2023.

The council said it already had funding and plans in place to cope with the expected increase in school places.

According to the report, the council needs to provide an extra 11 primary forms, with a further ten secondary school forms, by the start of the school year in September 2019.

The report also said that the school expansion programme is already providing an extra 1,890 primary school places, or nine forms of entry.

Gonul Daniels, who campaigns for extra school places in the borough, said: "The more places that we have in Enfield then the more choice is given to parents.

"It's about local children being able to go to local schools and where the places are actually provided is as important."

Mrs Daniels, who contested Edmonton for the Conservative Party in this year's general election, added that location was crucial, especially if children were being encouraged to walk to school.

Ayfer Orhan, cabinet member for education, children's services and protection, said: "When schools are expanded we ensure that they are well-equipped to teach the full range of subjects with specialist classrooms, expert teachers and innovation in all fields."

She added that the council worked closely with headteachers and school governors to decide the best way to expand schools to meet demand.

Smiles better: Amar Qureshi, Thames Water's major projects director, and Clive Wilson, who was on work experience

Job seekers make a splash

A GROUP of job seekers are hoping a work placement at a water treatment works will leave them flushed with success.

The eight unemployed people spent three weeks on a work placement at Thames Water's Deephams sewage works at Picketts Lock, in Edmonton, to gain key workplace skills – and some of them have already been offered job interviews.

They were involved in a range of activities including monitoring equipment, carrying out risk assessments, helping to erect security fencing and keeping the site, off Picketts Lock Lane, safe.

Team members, who were recruited by Enfield Job Centre, were also giving help in writing their CVs and advice in getting ready for job interviews.

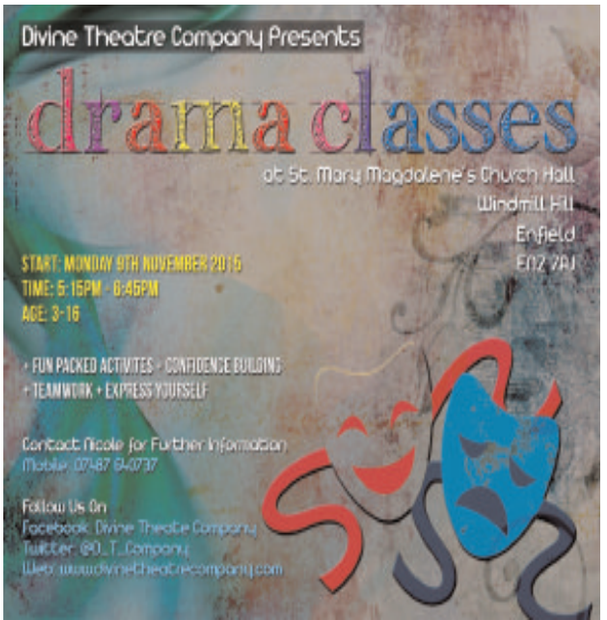

They were presented with certificates on Friday for completing Thames Water's Give Someone a Start scheme as well as an all-important reference.

They also had a chance to pick up career tips from the Energy and Utility Skills organisation, which helps companies attract and develop new talent.

Amar Qureshi, Thames Water's projects director, said: "I'm really proud to be involved in this scheme, but let's not forget the eight candidates are the real stars in this – they are an inspiration. They embraced this opportunity and really made the most of it."

Candidate Kevin Buckingham said: "I feel like my old self. This course has given me my life back."

The scheme has been running since 2012 to help long-term unemployed people get a step up on the career ladder.

Seeking answers: Chris Gooch believes Primodos caused her daughter's birth defects

Primodos panel 'must look at all of the evidence'

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

CAMPAIGNERS calling for a full inquiry into the effects of hormonal pregnancy testing on developing foetuses have given a cautious welcome to the news that an expert working group has been convened to examine the issue.

Primodos, which has been dubbed the forgotten Thalidomide, was given to women in the 1960s and 1970s as a pregnancy test.

The pills contained high doses of artificial hormones at a concentration 40 times higher than the modern-day contraceptive pill.

The pills were believed to work by inducing menstruation in women who were not pregnant.

Chris Gooch, 66, of Carnarvon Avenue, Enfield, whose daughter Emma was born in 1971 with birth defects which she believes were the result of being administered the pill by her doctor while she was pregnant, has been a vocal campaigner for a full public inquiry into the effects of the drug.

When the all-party parliamentary group for hormonal pregnancy testing was set up last year, she celebrated the first victory in the fight to find out more about how much was known about the drug before it was taken off the market in 1978 after Schering, the company who manufactured the drug, stopped recommending it for use in pregnancy testing in 1970.

She was similarly optimistic when the government announced a call for evidence from the public as they were convening an expert working group to form a panel of inquiry into the effects of the drug earlier this year. However, she fears that the expert working group will only consider studies that have already been considered in earlier decades and will overlook new evidence.

She told the Advertiser: "I am concerned that the panel will not look into the evidence around the earlier studies into the drug, such as why they were commissioned in the first place."

However, a spokesman for the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency, which is responsible for the working group's inquiry, insisted that the remit for the panel of was wide-ranging.

He said: "The expert working group will have access to all the evidence available to the government.

"The group will be presented with a detailed breakdown of all the evidence which has been collated and a detailed chronology of events, based on the information available.

"A public call for evidence, which closed at the end of June, gave people the opportunity to provide evidence for the review."

The group will be chaired by Dr Ailsa Gebbie, from NHS Lothian, and will be made up of 27 doctors and academics from across the UK.

A spokeswoman from Bayer, the company which took over Schering, said: "Bayer is aware of the expert working group.

"We will be engaging with the review. However, while the review is ongoing, it would not be appropriate for Bayer to make any additional comments.

"Bayer denies that Primodos was responsible for causing any deformities in children."

Council tax blow for hard-up residents

RESIDENTS on low incomes are facing reductions in the amount of government help towards paying their council tax bills.

Enfield Council has launched a public consultation seeking residents' opinions on how it should allocate next year's council tax support scheme.

Under central government's welfare reforms, the national council tax benefit scheme was axed in 2013 and local authorities were told they would have to introduce their own schemes to help the vulnerable pay their tax bills.

However, with more austerity cuts looming, Andrew Stafford, cabinet member for finance, has warned that the council can no longer keep funding the scheme to the same extent as before, adding that the authority was seeking to engage with residents who might be affected.

Mr Stafford explained: "When the government abolished the national council tax benefit scheme, they also reduced the money available to pay for it, leaving Enfield with a £5million shortfall. Since then we have seen further cuts to our funding. Despite this we want to strike a balance between providing an affordable scheme and giving those in most need some financial support, so we have proposed a number of different options."

The consultation can be accessed on: http://www.enfield.gov.uk/ctsconsultation and will end on Friday, December 18, at 5pm.

A spokesman said the council was not proposing to change the subsidy for pensioners and other protected groups, but was proposing to reduce the subsidy to low income working families.

Election time looms for Youth Parliament

By Ruth McKee
ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

ASPIRING teenage David Camerons, Theresa Mays and Jeremy Corbyns are lining up to stand for the borough's youth parliament.

Schools and youth centres are in the midst of selecting their finest wheeler dealer types to stand for election to the new session.

A list of the candidates will be announced by Enfield Council later this week and voting in schools for new Enfield Youth Parliament members will take place between November 16 and 26.

Each school involved will elect one member and one deputy.

Once all the votes have been totted up, the winners will be announced by Ayfer Orhan, cabinet member for education, on November 27 at St Anne's Lower School, in Enfield Town.

Ms Orhan said: "Selecting candidates is the first important step in the election process. It tests vision, presentation, persuasiveness and the desire to represent young people. It is an exciting time for young people in our schools who will experience this process."

Just like their adult counterparts, candidates will be expected to convince their contemporaries that they are the best choice to represent the voice of young people in the borough and will make their case at meetings and assemblies set aside for electioneering.

The youth parliament advises the council's scrutiny panels on issues which affect young people, including health, jobs, transport and community safety.

Ms Orhan added: "The contribution made by the Enfield Youth Parliament is invaluable because it gives the council real insight into the concerns of younger residents.

"They also elect two members and two deputy members on to the national UK Youth Parliament to represent Enfield's youth on the national stage."

'Invaluable contribution': Ayfer Orhan, Enfield Council's cabinet member for education, is looking forward to welcoming new Youth Parliament members

Judith and Co focus on the art of conversation

It's good to talk: Judith Jacobs and Javone Prince will be in conversation at the Dugdale Centre

By Russ Lawrence
russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A CHAT show gives theatre-goers the chance to get up close and personal with established and up-and-coming black British showbiz stars – among them Javone Prince, best known for his portrayal of self-proclaimed ladies' man Jerwayne, from the cult Channel 4 sitcom, Phone Shop.

Black celebs rarely get a look-in on the sofas of TV talk shows these days unless they are Hollywood actors or chart-topping pop stars, so ex-EastEnders actress Judith Jacob is redressing the balance by hosting her own chat show on Sunday at the Dugdale Centre, in London Road, Enfield.

Judith Jacob's Yabba Yabba is the second in a series of three talk shows she is hosting at the venue before the end of November to highlight the achievements of black people – and Sunday's line-up features multi-talented comedy actor Javone, together with Glenda Jaxson, one of only a handful of successful black female stand-up comedians, plus black British entrepreneur Jak Beula, creator of the award-winning board game Nubian Jak, which combines questions on historical facts with pop trivia.

"The chat show format gives me a chance to talk to people I've admired and it's partly to give exposure to their achievements because often the Afro-Caribbean community don't have a voice," explained Judith, best remembered as health visitor Carmel Roberts in the BBC TV soap. "It takes place in the intimate setting of the Dugdale where the audience feel they are part of the conversation. We discuss the interviewee's life story because many people don't know the journey they have taken to get to where they are and often that can inspire others to say, 'If they can do it, so can I'.

"I choose the guests, who are personal friends, because they are fascinating, funny and always entertaining and after I've interviewed them the audience gets to ask them questions," she added.

The final chat show in the series on Sunday, November 29, features former Tottenham Hotspur footballer and BBC TV pundit Garth Crooks, together with veteran reggae star Vivian "Sugarlove" Jones.

You can have your event included in the Enfield Advertiser for free. To have your gig, meeting, jumble sale or class considered for publication, send the details AT LEAST 10 DAYS before the issue date to: What's On, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT. You can email details of your event to ciaran.mcgrath@nlhnews.co.uk – PLEASE NOTE: We cannot guarantee that all entries will be included.

Fate rests on the turn of a card

MISSISSIPPI GRIND (15, 109 mins)

LADY Luck deals us a winning hand with writer-directors Ryan Fleck and Anna Boden's coolly assured character study.

Earlier this year, Mark Wahlberg headlined an ill-conceived remake of James Toback's seminal 1974 drama The Gambler.

Mississippi Grind shuffles its cards from the same well-thumbed narrative deck and even features a pivotal cameo from Toback in the film's closing moments,when the fate of battered and bruised players rest on the turn of one card or the roll of a die.

For all its familiarity, Fleck and Boden's picture executes its characters' falls from grace with clinical precision, demanding big risks from actors Ben Mendelsohn and Ryan Reynolds as men who make life-altering decisions on the toss of a coin.

The filmmakers' gamble pays off handsomely: the two leads deliver unselfconscious and heart-wrenching performances, dripping with the sweat of desperation and self-loathing.

As Reynolds' cool-headed chancer correctly remarks: "This story does not have a happy ending."

That's not to say that this is a gut-punch of endless misery and gloom.

The script has flushes of comedy and humour and the actors' winning on-screen chemistry harks back to a bygone era of Hollywood buddy movies.

Gerry (Mendelsohn) is a loveless and luckless real estate agent in Dubuque, Iowa, who has borrowed thousands of dollars from a loan shark (Alfre Woodard) to finance his gambling habit.

Carefree: Curtis (Ryan Reynolds)

Debts are spiralling and Gerry desperately needs one big win to keep the wolves from his door.

At a card game, he meets bourbon connoisseur Curtis (Ryan Reynolds), who lacks inhibitions because, in his own words: "I don't care about winning."

Curtis' carefree attitude has a positive effect on Gerry's fortunes and the gambler proposes that they join forces and head to New Orleans for a high-profile poker tournament that requires a $25,000 initial stake.

"I'll play, you'll be my lucky charm," enthuses Gerry. "We'll split the winnings, even-steven."

Thus the two men hit the road, pit-stopping in St Louis, Memphis and Little Rock to amass the money.

En route, the unlikely buddies cross paths with working girls Simone (Sienna Miller) and Vanessa (Analeigh Tipton) and Gerry blunders into an awkward reunion with his aggrieved ex-wife, Dorothy (Robin Weigert).

Mississippi Grind achieves its modest ambitions with style and artistry, vividly sketching a modern-day bromance that threatens to come apart at the booze-soaked seams. The script falls a couple of spins short of hitting an emotional jackpot, but it's difficult to see how the writer-directors could achieve that kind of crescendo without some clumsy contrivance.

Fleck and Boden place their unerring trust throughout in Mendelsohn and Reynolds, filming pivotal scenes of doubt and despair in uncomfortable close-up so we have nowhere to hide from the characters' pain.

Every time they lose and lament, we win.

CALA HOMES

Buyers Snapping Up Luxury New Homes in Mill Hill

Upmarket housebuilder CALA Homes has been experiencing a surge in demand since the launch of its flagship development Millbrook Park in Mill Hill at the beginning of June. So far apartments in Arrandene House are almost sold out and the second phases of apartments in Zenith have been released ahead of schedule to satisfy interest.

Chris Roads, sales and marketing director for CALA Homes North Homes Counties, comments,

"Millbrook Park is an extremely desirable area to live and this has been reflected in the demand we have seen to date for new homes. The first block of apartments is already nearly all sold and we've released and already taken reservations for our next apartment block Zenith - to meet demand."

Chris continues, "A number of the townhouses have also been reserved off plan ahead of the show home opening at the end of October, So we're encouraging people to register their interest for a priority preview of The Belmont as soon as possible, as there are only three remaining."

These contemporary three and four bedroom terraced townhouses are spread over three storeys and are over 2,200 Sq. ft. in size. Each of these stunning homes feature an open plan kitchen/ dining area with French doors leading to the rear garden, a spacious lounge with balcony and a master bedroom with en suite shower room and dressing room. Prices currently start from £1.125m. 'The Belmont' four bedroom showhome will be opening its doors on the 24th October and buyers can register their interest now to receive a priority viewing ahead of the launch.

CALA Homes at Millbrook Park is an exclusive development of only 65 one and two bedroom apartments and just 13 three and four bedroom houses.

Located in the heart of the Mill Hill conservation area, Millbrook Park is set to be a thriving, sustainable community and is already becoming one of the most sought-after addresses in North- West London with its high quality apartments and homes in a landscaped parkland setting. It will feature a range of community facilities including a new primary school, and almost six hectares of parks and open space, with far reaching views towards the city. Once known as Inglis Barracks, the former Officers Mess building has been sensitively restored and the Officers' Mess Gardens has been completed and now open for use.

Access to Central London couldn't be easier, with the Northern Line at Mill Hill East underground station a short walk away reaching Camden in around 20 minutes, Euston in 23 minutes and Islington in 32 minutes. By car, the A1, A406 and M1 are also close by, with the M25 jus over seven miles away.

Millbrook Park Church of England Primary School on the development opened in September 2014. There are also other good state primary schools in the area including St Vincent's RC Primary, Frith Manor Primary and Mill Hill County High. Grimsdell Mill Hill Preparatory School, Belmont Preparatory School, Mill Hill School and The Mount School are all within two miles.

Mill Hill Broadway is just two miles away with a wide choice of shops and cafes or for the more avid shopper, Brent Cross with its 120 high street stores is only four miles away. There is plenty for the active to do close by with Virgin Active Health Club, Finchley Golf Club, The London Equestrian Centre and Mill Hill Country Park.

To register your interest for the VIP priority preview of the new showhome or for information about future apartment releases, please call CALA Homes at Millbrook Park on 0208 3434997 or visit www.cala.co.uk

DEMBELE PRAISED AFTER STALEMATE

By Dominique Stafford

sport.enfield@nlhnews.co.uk

MOUSA DEMBELE was hailed by Jan Vertonghen after producing a man-of-the-match performance for Tottenham Hotspur in the 0-0 draw against Liverpool on Saturday.

The Belgian international midfielder has struggled to secure a regular place in the starting line-up at White Hart Lane since joining Spurs from Fulham for £15million three years ago and has only just recovered from a foot injury which had seen him sidelined since August.

But Eric Dier's suspension led to Dembele being given his chance to impress against Liverpool, and he responded in fine style with an excellent display in an uninspiring match of few clear-cut chances – and Vertonghen was full of praise for the efforts of his international team-mate.

"I spoke to Mousa during the week because we had injuries and suspensions and I thought he might have a chance to play," he said. "He might be one of the best midfielders in the Premier League, and everyone agrees on that.

"It's a joy to play with him and a nightmare to play against him. I was playing some difficult balls into him and wanted to say sorry but he turns them around. He's an unbelievable player.

"I just hope he can stay fit because that's the main thing with Mousa. He worked hard to come back and I hope that he stays fit now for the rest of the season."

Vertonghen added: "It was up and down as a match with lots of pressing, a high tempo and lots of energy from both sides.

"We faced a strong side, but if you look at the highlights we could have scored three or four goals. Simon Mignolet was outstanding for Liverpool. I've known him for a couple of years now and he's always been a good keeper, and you could see that in this match – unfortunately for us."

And head coach Mauricio Pochettino, who was named the Premier League's manager of the month for October on Friday, expressed his frustration that Tottenham were not able to secure maximum points from the match.

"I think we deserved more than a point," he said. "We only conceded one clear chance, from a corner when we only had ten players on the pitch with Nacer Chadli injured.

"I think we had four clear chances in the first half. Mignolet saved Liverpool, and I'm very happy, very pleased with the players.

Impressive performer: Mousa Dembele shone for Tottenham against Liverpool

"Our performance was very good. After nine Premier League games we've only had one defeat in the first game against Manchester United and we've shown that we are very solid and difficult to beat. We're still young and we improve every day.

"Harry Kane was good. He had two clear chances to score. People expect that he should score every time he touches the ball, but he worked hard and there was great effort from him. I have no doubt that the goal is coming."

Joy for Coleman as duo sign for Skolars

THE London Skolars have strengthened their squad ahead of next season by signing two players from Kingstone Press Championship One rivals Hemel Stags.

The rugby league club have secured the services of back-row forward Eddie Mbaraga – who began his career as a junior with the Skolars – and young half-back Charlie Lawrence as they look to make progress following a difficult campaign.

Mbaraga has been one of the most consistent performers in League One for the past three years, being a regular member of the RL World League One team of the month during that time, while Lawrence was a regular in the London Broncos under-19 side for two years prior to joining the Stags.

Skolars' head coach Jermaine Coleman said: "Having worked with Eddie for a number of seasons at Hemel, I felt I had watched him develop into an outstanding League One forward. He was someone I was very interested in bringing to the Skolars.

"He is a very talented player, can play anywhere across the back-row, has great footwork for a big man, is a damaging runner around the fringes and has a keen eye for the try line. I have no doubt that he will provide us with an exciting option in an already impressive forward pack.

"Charlie is a great signing for us and will be a fantastic addition to our squad. He has been in a good system at London Broncos and then has gained some valuable League One experience at Hemel.

"He is a consistent performer and is very versatile, being able to play either at half-back or hooker. He is a smart rugby player with an exceptional kicking game and I'm looking forward to giving him the opportunity to really kick on from his debut season in League One with us at the Skolars."

And the past week has also seen five key players re-sign for the Skolars for the 2016 season, with Ollie Bloom, Dion Chapman, Mike Benson, Joe Price and Aaron Smalls all committing their immediate futures to the club.

❑ The fixtures for the 2016 Championship One season have been released, with the Skolars starting out at York City Kings on March 6 before facing their first home game against Oxford six days later.

Borough are beaten by AFC Sudbury

HARINGEY BOROUGH returned empty-handed from their long trip to high-flying AFC Sudbury on Saturday as they slumped to a 2-0 defeat in Ryman League Division One North.

Although recent weeks have seen a marked improvement in Borough's form, they found themselves under pressure in the early stages of this match as Stefano Mallardo twice headed over from good positions inside the first six minutes.

However, the visitors came agonisingly close to breaking the deadlock on nine minutes when Daniel Ailey rose high to head the ball against the outside of the post.

Ishmail Kamara and Ashley Fashanu were both denied by fine blocks as Borough continued to press, while Leroy Griffiths' snap-shot brought a good save out of home keeper Luis Tibbles.

Sallem Mastri was also thwarted by Tibbles, but Sudbury regained control and only an acrobatic save from keeper Ashley Harris prevented Jordan Blackwell from giving them the lead.

The hosts eventually broke the deadlock just before the interval when Liam Wales reacted quickest to drill in the rebound after Craig Parker's free-kick had been expertly parried by Harris.

And Sudbury did not have to wait long to extend their advantage as they scored again in the early stages of the second half – Blackwell capping a fine run by crossing for Luke Callander to fire home.

The hosts became increasingly dominant after this and Blackwell hooked a shot just wide before Ryan Henshaw saw his header cleared off the line.

Parker had two shots blocked and Wales fired narrowly wide as Borough were increasingly forced on the defensive, but they displayed real resilience to ensure that they avoided conceding again – with Harris making a fine save with his legs to deny Parker in the dying moments.

Haringey Borough, who visited Cray Wanderers last night, face home games against Phoenix Sports on Saturday (3pm) and Cheshunt on Tuesday (7.45pm).
